Dosher and BCC Foundation Leaders Earn Executive Certificates in Nonprofit Leadership

Lynda Stanley, President of the Doshier Memorial Hospital Foundation and Elizabeth Wassum, Executive Director of the Brunswick Community College Foundation, have both received certificates in Executive Nonprofit Leadership from Duke University.

The Executive Certificate in Nonprofit Leadership is a comprehensive program that offers experienced nonprofit professionals the opportunity to increase their capacity for effective leadership, enabling its graduates to gain awareness of emerging trends in the nonprofit sector, work effectively with other leaders across organizations and stakeholder groups to capitalize on opportunities for synergy in addressing critical social issues, and lead strategic change within their organizations.

Elizabeth Wassum of Brunswick Community College said of the program, "The exposure to the cohort of other non-profit professionals, the faculty, and course materials were truly transformational and inspired new ways of thinking about how non-profit organizations serve as a network of support in our communities."

The program, held in October, was attended by 20 nonprofit leaders from around the world. Enrollment in the programs for both Stanley and Wassum was sponsored by The Tom and Susan Rabon Charitable Foundation.

"The work of nonprofits is crucial to the survival of our communities," said Lynda Stanley of Doshier. "It was an honor to be selected to attend and be sponsored by the Tom and Susan Rabon Charitable Foundation."

About the Doshier Foundation:
